PROGRAMA / PROGRAM

Mediterranea - Analysis of experimental gender audiovisual production in the Mediterranean area by Alessandra Arnò

The project aims to define the specificities of the gender of artistic video production of the MENA areas, to collect the experiences of the artists, curators and scholars through interviews and in-depth analyzes to return a text that highlights the curatorial research process, the curatorial text of the selection and an audiovisual selection of the most representative works of the last five years.

These researches are currently of undoubted cultural interest, both for the need to deepen the Cultural Studies of the MENA's areas and the consequent urgency of decolonizing the gaze and opening discussion on gender.

This presentation displays how this idea was born, how it is an urgent matter, and how curatorial research will be defined through open cooperation with professionals.

Alessandra Arnò carries out curatorial research as artistic director of Visualcontainer, a renowned platform for research and dissemination of Italian and international video art since 2008. As a curator, she develops curatorial practices to define experimental audiovisual trends and issues of interest to emerging and middle carrier artists. She disseminates them through the ad hoc creation of dissemination platforms, the curation of exhibitions in museums, private and institutional spaces and festivals.

Project supported by the Italian Council (11 th edition, 2022), the program aimed at supporting Italian contemporary art in the world promoted by the Directorate-General for Contemporary Creativity within the Italian Ministry of Culture

Tseng Yu Chin - Shivering wall (Taiwan)

“Tseng Yu Chin muestra la representación de una escena, donde un nido de jóvenes entrelazados descansa tras una sesión nocturna. En la penumbra, podemos observar el paso del tiempo ralentizado con una figura que destaca por estar algo más consciente que las demás. Como si de alguna forma se diera cuenta de que no debiera estar ahí. De esa manera se enfrenta a sí misma contemplando su propia imagen, decaída y sin reaccionar. El artista revela con esta pieza un estado de ausencia, donde la comunicación se ve limitada a un acercamiento debilitado y vago, sin interés aparente.

Podría decir que es una forma de ver la sociedad en crudo, algo que está ocurriendo sin un grito que haga despertar.”

About the film:

It's a self-examined process for assess your present time. In the regular bass sound surround space, you could find there's a few teenagers are having a madness house party, and there's a girl awake but exhausted for being there. There's a slightly smog or light gently but regularly move in the space. The smog represented a spiritual inside a space. It could be the spiritual from you or others. It's like you are just in a conference or a party and suddenly there's something pull your spirit away from your body. It makes you look at yourself in a different angle, but you're still in the group. What would you do and what's the connection between you and others?

If the smog was another you – a same existence from another world to look at your body in this group full of chaos and desired. However, there's nothing you can changed as a member in this group. All you can do silently look down at your body, and move away quietly.

If the smog wasn't you, it was an outsider of this whole group of people. You are paralysed to make any specific change in the group although your body still in there. What you should do and what would you do? You are just upon there and silently away from all these scenes made by human being.

There's certainly no right or wrong answer for this topic. This just point out the way how you look at yourself. It's a discussion about the existence of yourself. What makes you becomes the present existence and what's track you would leave in your life.

Director Statement:

Each person is an individual sensory being. From the environment, sensory information enters the body, creating a feedback that manifests in the individual's body language and facial expression.

The individual's resistance against collective homogenization is where one experiences existence in its philosophical sense, the reaction of the "I" carving on the body. Truth is oftentimes unrelated to what is documented, but found in the traces left on the body that is the witness of one's existence.

My work points out that the bilateral gaze between society and the self is akin to the back-and-forth of philosophical debates.

<https://tsengyuchin.com>

About the director:

He began his career as an experimental filmmaker, and at the age of 27, he was a finalist in the Golden Horse Film Festival for the experimental short film project. Afterwards, he concentrated on the artistic expression of video as a medium during his graduate studies, and officially entered the field of video art making (or extended cinema).

At the age of 29, he was selected as the youngest artist in the 12th Kassel Documenta Biennale with his series "Who is listening? ", and became one of the most representative artists in the world at that time. The work itself is based on the human body as a creative text, using the body to discuss the distortion and aphasia of politics, society, and values that have been violently and coldly inflicted on the individual's body. He uses images to express the political embarrassment of the body's presence but the absence of the spirit. The most representative series are the children's body series and the teenage body series. The teenage body series is currently in progress.

Simon Quéheillard - Une embuscade en suspens (France)

In this film, the artist returns to the figure of the storm at the origin of the film, the falling trees as what simultaneously integrated and destroyed the forest (here the Landes forest). The fall of a tree, like that of a huge blow from a stick (Slapstick) on the surface of the globe, makes it possible to approach the technical and material installation of the film, like that of a building site. Around a hundred trees were needed for the filming of this film, seventeen of which appear today in the final version.

Director Biography - Simon Queheillard

Simon Quéheillard is a French artist, born in 1977, in Bordeaux. He lives in Paris. His work revolves around different practices : video, objects, writing. His works always start from a physical principle and its variations : the reflection of light in a puddle of water, the mechanical movement of an escalator, the passage of a crowd, the observation of wind, the passage of semi-trailer trucks, or falling trees in the forest. He has published two books of prose poems, The picture in the paper and A large pale world, outlined. His recent video works, Master-wind (Images festival Toronto, AVIFF Cannes, Punto de Vista), From beginnings to beginnings (Fid Marseille, IVHAM Madrid), are part of video art and the history of slapstick cinema. The artist is a “catastrophe operator”. It triggers mechanisms over which he no longer has any control. In this line, his latest video work "An ambush in suspense" is described by the artist as a “life-size slapstick”.

Chia Yun Wu - Five, Four, Three, Two (Taiwan)

About the film:

Albert Camus pointed out that Sisyphus may be pleased with his punishment as he pushes a giant rock up to a hill repeatedly. Because when he accepts his fate and lives on independent consciousness, the punishment of the gods on him no longer makes sense, and the meaningless punishment is no longer in vain.

The film cites the philosophy-mythology, where the three characters played the same role, the crowd. Their unrelated daily lives are like destiny and cycle, without beginning and ending, without joy or sorrow. They share the same memory of counting down numbers repeatedly and begin a karma through the passing of a boulder.

Director Biography - Chia-Yun Wu

Wu Chia-Yun (b.1988, Taiwan) received an MA degree in Visual Communication from the Royal College of Art (London) and an MFA degree in Motion Picture from the National Taiwan University of Arts (Taipei). She is an artist and filmmaker currently based in Taiwan.

In recent years, Wu has been selected internationally to the PROYECTOR Festival de Videoarte (Spain, 2019), European Media Art Festival (Germany, 2020), Rencontres Internationales Paris/Berlin (France, 2021), London Short Film Festival (UK, 2022) and received the qualification of British Academy of Film Awards; screened at the Institute of Contemporary Arts, Auditorium du Louvre and Haus der Kulturen der Welt. Her work has been collected by The European Independent Film Channel (France, 2015).
